

38 MADISON BOYS WERE WOUNDED

More Valuable Kentucky War History Is Given Out By Council of Defense

The Historical Department of the Kentucky Council of Defense sends the Daily Register today a list of the Madison county boys who were wounded in the war and also those taken prisoners. Of the latter Lieut. Edward W. Gray is the only one known. The Council of Defense is doing a splendid work in arranging and compiling the state's history in the big war, and it should receive every assistance and co-operation possible. The list of Madison county boys wounded so far as it has been able to learn is as follows:

Only 1,192 Wounded Still in France
"In connection with this movement of men from France it may be interesting to know that only 1,192 of the men who were wounded in battle are still in France. We have gotten practically the entire contingent back to the United States." (Gen. Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, Official Bulletin, May 15, 1919, p. 4.)

Many Kentucky Men Wounded
The list of men from Kentucky who have been wounded is not yet complete. The Kentucky Council of Defense, through its State Historian, and county historians in each county, has been compiling from the United States Official Bulletin, and from newspaper reports and other sources, a list of the wounded.

It is hoped that this list will be complete within a few months. Lists of wounded are still being published by the War Department. The Kentucky list now contains over 3,000 names.

As far compiled, this list shows some very interesting figures:

In many of the counties there are more deaths shown than wounds. This is probably due to the fact that many men died from disease in camps in this country, as well as overseas, during the influenza epidemic.

The latest figure published by the War Department show that 208,785 Americans soldiers were wounded, and that 85 per cent of them returned to duty.

Among the larger counties the wounded are as follows:

Boyd County	58
Campbell County	87
Carter County	54
Fayette County	45
Kenton County	144
Jefferson County	302
Hopkins County	55
Johnson County	45
Pike County	76
Pulaski County	56
Warren County	26
Whitley County	66

The following list of men from Kentucky who were reported as having been taken prisoner by the Germans was compiled from the Official Bulletin and from newspaper reports. It is probably not yet complete. In information as to corrections or additions to the list should be sent to Fred P. Caldwell, State Historian, 1104 Inter-Southern Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

14 GRADUATES HEAR SPLENDID SERMON

An impressive and beautiful picture was seen at the First Christian church Sunday evening, when the 14 graduates of Caldwell High School, arrayed in cap and gown, marched into the sacred edifice and heard the baccalaureate sermon delivered by Dr. W. A. Fortune, of Transylvania University, Lexington.

It was a masterly address and held the big audience's close attention from beginning to end. Dr. Fortune spoke to the graduates, as from heart to heart, and gave them, the graduates, just entering upon their young manhood and young womanhood, some serious thoughts to think upon. A beautiful musical program was also a feature of the evening.

The preaching of the baccalaureate sermon was the formal opening of the Commencement Week. For the next few days every minute will be full for the graduates and undergraduates of Caldwell, who are to take part in the closing ceremonies and programs. The young people's musical at 3 o'clock this afternoon, is today's feature. For the remainder of the week the calendar is as follows:

Dr. JAMES H. JEFFRIES

WHO SHOWED PRIVATE INTERESTS THE TREATY

(By Associated Press)
Washington, June 9—Senator Hitchcock, democrat, today received a cablegram from President Wilson saying he hoped the Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigation as to how copies of the peace treaty reached private interests at New York will "be most thoroughly prosecuted."

The President said he felt it "highly undesirable officially to communicate the text of the document still in negotiation and subject to change," and that any one who had possession of the official English text, "has what he clearly is not entitled to have or to communicate."

The President's statement strengthened officials' belief that he would not comply with the Senate's request that the treaty text be furnished at this time.

When the inquiry opened, Senator Lodge, who made the first charge the treaty was in "hands of New Yorkers" was the star witness, but refused on the grounds of Senatorial immunity, to give the names of the persons who had the treaty. Before the investigation was fairly under way, a copy of the treaty brought to the United States by a Chicago newspaper, was presented by Senator Borah, and was ordered printed in the Congressional Record.

To Ask Financiers About It
Washington, June 9—In its investigation of how copies of the peace treaty reached New York, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today subpoenaed Jacob Schiff, Thomas F. Lamont, H. P. Davidson, Paul Warburg, J. P. Morgan, and Frank A. Vanderlip, Acting Secretary Polk was also invited to appear as a witness.

All except Vanderlip and Polk were called at the request of Senator Borah, who asserted the financiers are interested "for private reasons," in the adoption of the League of Nations covenant.

LABOR ENDORSES LEAGUE OF NATIONS
(By Associated Press)
Atlantic City, N. J., June 9—Important projects for the advancement of labor and improvement of conditions, as well as comprehensive outlines of what has been accomplished on labor's behalf during the last year, are set forth in the report of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, submitted today to the officers and delegates attending the the opening session of the 39th annual convention.

The advent of peace is taken by the council to hold out bright prospects for labor. Of the peace treaty, itself, the labor executives forming the council, after endorsing the "triumph of freedom and justice and democracy as exemplified in the covenant of the League of Nations," says the labor sections are a compromise, but that it must, however, "be a source of deepest satisfaction to the American working people to know that the American position and the American declarations as presented for insertion in the treaty ranked above all others in point of progress measured and in point of actual and practical application in the lives of working people. Whatever of the compromise appears, was made because of the claim that other nations of the world could not pledge themselves to an immediate acceptance of the standards maintained by the American labor movement as the established practices of our day."

Fleming Woman Suicides
A dispatch from Flemingsburg says that Mrs. George Gardner, committed suicide Sunday by shooting herself through the brain with a 32 calibre revolver. Mrs. Gardner had prepared breakfast and after the family had finished eating, she went into an adjoining room. In a short while her husband was startled by a report of a pistol shot. He rushed into the room and found Mrs. Gardner dead. Fastened to the bosom of her dress was a note, as follows: "Bad health was the cause of it. Take care of the children and don't let them be separated. Good bye." She leaves a husband, George Gardner, a carpenter, and two small children.

A REAL HERO HERE
Probably no returned soldier has yet visited Madison county since the termination of the war, who saw more of its grim realities than Lieut. Harry W. Farmer, of Lincoln county, who with his mother, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Hubbard and other relatives here during the past several days. Lieut. Farmer fought through several of the hardest battles of the war with the 4th division and proved himself a brave and valiant soldier in every way. He took part in numerous attacks on the Hun and distinguished himself by his bravery and courage. He was badly gassed during one attack and was carried back to a base hospital, a distance of 300 miles and did not recover consciousness for several days. For about a week he was totally blind from the effects of the deadly poison gas. He also caught a machine gun bullet in an ankle but this did not stop him for he bravely went on at the head of his men until the gas got in its deadly work. The young man, who was a student at State University at Lexington when the war broke out, plans to return there and finish his course as soon as he is able. He is very popular at Stanford, his home and all are mighty proud of the splendid record he has made in the service of his country.

BURDEN IS UPON THEIR SHOULDERS

To Become Citizens of World, Not of a Mere Locality, Dr. Carpenter Tells Graduates

Dr. Homer W. Carpenter, of the First Christian church, in the most eloquent manner, delivered one of the greatest baccalaureate sermons ever heard in Richmond when he addressed the graduates of the Normal and Model Schools Sunday evening at seven o'clock in the auditorium of the Normal School.

Dr. Carpenter took for his text the following: "Brethren, I count not myself to have attained; but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

He spoke of the unfinished task and the responsibilities resting upon the shoulders of those who are going out into the world from the colleges and training schools of this country. He warned the graduates that the men who died at Vimy Ridge, Marne, Verdun, and Chateau Thierry were calling to them to save the world from another war, and urged them to take their place as citizens of a world empire and not confine their vision to the locality in which they reside.

The work of those who have gone before is yet to be finished and it is the duty of those who are qualified to do that work. Instead of a million Sir Galahads going forth to war, there is from the schools of our country a million Sir Galahads going forth to peace.

Never has a speaker had better attention than was given Dr. Carpenter last evening. He left an impression upon the following graduates that will cause them to ever walk uprightly:

Nina Miller, Otto Mills, Mary F. Gudgel, Lois Champion, Stella Greathouse, Mrs. Mary Hacker, Lora Mae Harlow, Alice Lorraine Petty, Rachel Mae Powell, Linnie McDonald, Maggie Lou Rankin, Peal Scrivner, Mrs. Nancy D. Shelton, Mary Sothard, Christine Thomason, Lettie S. Whaley, Minnie F. Burchett, Model High School—Patrick Allen, Mary K. Jasper, Sara Myers, Virginia Harrison, Rowena Coates, Edith Nunn, Fannie Kellems, Willie Barnes, Harvey Chenault, Lucille Minter, Galen White, Lelia Price, Frances English, Josephine Covington.

Henry Ford is going to have a lot of patriotic sympathy in his million-dollar libel suit against the Chicago Tribune, just because of what the Tribune said of Von Bernstorff, shortly before the United States got into the big war. An editorial entitled "Count Von Bernstorff" contained the following statements: "Washington correspondence says that Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, is in danger of his usefulness impaired by the attitude of the administration toward him. It is to be hoped that this report comes from a misreading of indications. Von Bernstorff has not only served Germany well, but has been of great value to the United States." If a great paper like the Chicago Tribune thought that of the German arch-spy and plotter, few people will have sympathy for it in defending its charge that Henry Ford was an "anarchist."

"The best substitute for the saloon is the bookcase," says Collier's Weekly. "The bookcase can match every thrill the saloon ever gave, and all some of its own." Barkeepers must have been awfully stupid not to have put the Harvard Classics on one end of the bar, long ago, instead of the free lunch.

"I think it is a good peace," says Clemenceau. If he is satisfied, Americans might as well stop worrying about the "disappointment and betrayal" of France.

PLEA FOR LITTLE FRENCH ORPHANS

(Contributed)

Will those who adopted French children last June please send their checks to Mrs. W. R. Shackelford as soon as possible? Some have already done so. We earnestly hope all those who took them last year are enough interested to renew their subscriptions. We hear from our own soldiers that this one of the most important and effective works done in France today. These children are just as fatherless and destitute now as when the armistice was signed, and the head office is imploring everybody to renew as well as to try to get others "adopted." It only costs ten cents a day—$36.50 a year—and every cent goes to the child. Any child whose father lost his life in the war is eligible and this small sum added to what the French government gives, enables a mother to keep the child in its own home instead of being sent to a public institution.

A French officer who spoke in this part of the state last year, said "if people here could but see the joy of the mothers who had children in these public places, when they received these sums which enabled them to take their children home, they would understand what it meant to them and to France." Maybe those who have children of their own could put themselves in their places just for a moment and decide that it is worth while.

The object of the Fatherless Children of France Society is—
"To assure the little war orphans the fireside and motherly care, the education of the country a career appropriate for each child, and the religion of their fathers."

The following letter was received by Mrs. J. M. Haden, and explains itself:
St. Souveur, France,
April 22, 1919.

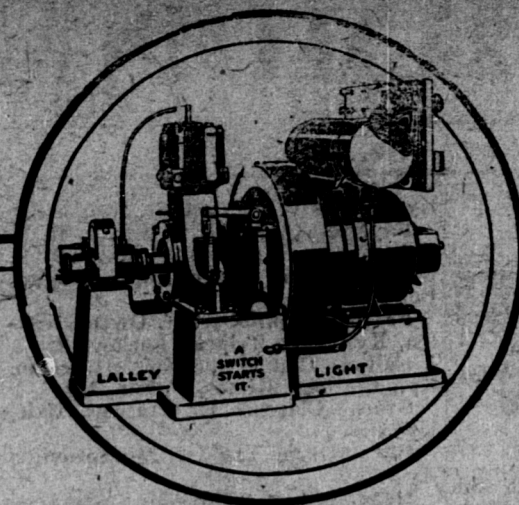

Dear Madam:—
I have just seen your little Andree Regnier's mother. She came to me for your letter to be translated. As you said you would like to read some lines written in English, I offer her to send them to you. She is so glad you liked the picture of her little one and so moved because you wish to know when and how her husband was taken. She doesn't know much about the unfortunate end of the dear one; when he last wrote her he had his feet frozen. Oh! a most terrible thing from which too many of our men died in this long hideous war! And she thinks his death occurred on the 31st of January, 1919. Poor bereaved woman with three children, one of whom is deaf and dumb. She feels deeply grateful to you for your kind help and comfort. She asked me to write the translation of your letter so that she may show it to her people.

Let me tell you, dear madam, that I, too, feel grateful to you and to all your countrywomen who help the mothers and fatherless children of France to bear their burdens. Your hearty letters do them good, indeed. This American-French Commission is at least a comforting side of the war. Believe me, madam, yours very sincerely, Lucie Bernot.

(Your little French girl is ten years old.)

LALLEY-LIGHT

THE BALL BEARING ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

Lalley-Light furnishes two sources of light and power in the one plant.

The machine itself is one; the storage battery is the other.

Light used direct from the generator is as steady and strong and brilliant as from the battery.

This is an advantage not usually found.

It is due to the fact that the patented Lalley-Light engine is especially designed and built to drive an electric generator.

It is worth a great deal to the man who must have light and power that are wholly reliable.

We will demonstrate Lalley-Light, free. Call for the book of owners' testimonials.

MRS. SANFORD'S MESSAGE TO WORKING WOMEN

Laurel, Miss. — "Eight years ago I was suffering with pains and weakness caused by a female trouble. I had headaches, chills and fevers, and was unable to do my work part of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and I took twelve bottles of it, and my health has been good ever since. I am able to run the machine and do dressmaking besides my housework. You are at liberty to publish my letter if it will help some poor suffering woman."

—Mrs. J. C. SANFORD, 1237 Second Ave., Laurel, Miss.

Thousands of women drag along from day to day in just such a miserable condition as was Mrs. Sanford, or suffering from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, sideache, headache, nervousness, or "the blues."

Such women should profit by Mrs. Sanford's experience and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find relief from their sufferings as she did.

For special suggestions in regard to your ailment write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their long experience is at your service.

McCombs Road Oil

"From the time of the Roman Caesars it has been recognized that prosperity follows good roads."

THE high cost of material and the shortage of labor put a premium upon the preservation of present equipment; and for the preservation of good roads a gallon of oil is worth a bushel of labor.

Imperative demands of the war period have prevented adequate road maintenance, improvement and extension. The immense transportation problem of reconstruction requires that the arteries of traffic be kept in good condition.

Roads well oiled last indefinitely. A well-oiled road is impervious to the destructive forces of nature and offers adequate resistance to the wear and tear of heavy traffic.
